DECLARATION OF CRYSTAL KING

DECLARATION OF CRYSTAL KING

1. I am Director of the Carolina Union at The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill (“UNC-Chapel Hill,” “Carolina,” or the “University”) and have held that position since 2013.

2. I am responsible for the management of the Carolina Union organization and the operation of the Frank Porter Graham Student Union Building. The Carolina Union builds a vibrant campus community by offering a host of diverse programs and activities while supporting 22,000 reservations in over 100 Carolina Union, general-purpose classrooms, and outdoor spaces across the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill campus. My portfolio also includes overseeing the Student Activities Fund Office, Student Life & Leadership Office which houses support for our approximately 800 student organizations, campus-wide student leadership development, and the traditional campus programming board. I also serve as an advisor to Student Government.

3. Previously, I served as the Associate Executive Director of University Unions at the University of Texas at Austin (“UT Austin”). I was directly responsible for managing the building operations of four student life facilities.

4. Other positions I held on the UT Austin campus included serving as Director of the Student Activity Center, Associate Director of Student Programs and Assistant Director of Student Programs.

Carolina Union

5. Our motto is “Carolina Union: More than a building.” Our mission is to create safe, inclusive, and educational experiences that enable students to maximize their time at Carolina. The Union is the nerve center for the campus: a place where members of the University community can gather for debate, discussion, information exchange, association with other students and faculty, relaxation and quiet contemplation. Through our extensive variety of programs and services, the Union complements the academic experience by providing a well-planned and diverse offering of educational, cultural, social and recreational activities and events.

6. To put it simply, we are the campus community builders. That’s what a union is – a place you can enjoy a bagel and engage in a new experience that sparks thinking and conversation at the same time.

7. We believe that Carolina is not just about formal classroom education. Instead, we believe it is essential to teach students to interact in a community setting to better the world. We are the location where students come back together to grapple with what they are learning in class.

8. Students who participate in our programs, activities, and organizations learn by doing and are challenged to think creatively, analytically, and critically. It is here that Carolina students are afforded the opportunity to put into practice what they are learning in the classroom and to develop their core leadership skills, enabling them to create change and community.

The Union and Educational Benefits of Diversity

9. The University's mission is to "to teach a diverse community of undergraduate, graduate, and professional students to become the next generation of leaders."

10. At the Carolina Union, we strive to further the University's mission by supporting and welcoming diverse community members and creating opportunities for them to interact, engage, and develop leadership abilities.

11. Based upon my education, training, and experience, I believe there are key educational benefits of diversity, and seeking to achieve those benefits informs my work. I have personally observed the educational benefits of diversity while at Carolina.

12. By participating in student organizations that support diversity, students broaden their worldviews and strengthen their tolerance and acceptance of other students who are not like them. Through informal conversations with other members of their organization, students are exposed to different ways of life. Through formal workshops, discussion series, and guest speakers, student organizations provide information and experiences to community members to which they might not have had access otherwise.

13. We know from the literature that it is erroneous to assume that students will naturally learn about their peers. Rather, it is up to educators to facilitate structured opportunities for dialogue to transpire.

14. The Council for the Advancement of Standards in Higher Education has published a best practices guide book, entitled the CAS Professional Standards for Higher Education. This resource provides that campus activities program staff must design and implement strategies for involving and engaging diverse student populations, offer educational programs that emphasize self-assessment and personal responsibility for creating and improving relationships across difference, and create a welcoming and nurturing environment for all students.

15. We think carefully about the ways our programs further the key learning and development outcomes and competencies articulated in the CAS Professional Standards for Higher Education. For instance, our approximate 150 student employment positions throughout the Union operation further outcomes of interpersonal development, while participation in student organizations or the Carolina Union Board of Directors furthers outcomes of humanitarian and civic engagement. Our student body diversity contributes substantially to our programs and these outcomes.

16. The various ways the Union contributes to the realization of the educational benefits of diversity outside the classroom at UNC-Chapel Hill are discussed below.

Leadership Development at Carolina

17. At Carolina, we take seriously our responsibility to develop campus and world leaders. Carolina students have a number of opportunities to participate in leadership programming.

18. All of these leadership programs are greatly enhanced by the diversity of our students. Diversity of the students participating in these programs helps better train leaders who can relate to and serve diverse populations. Moreover, by training leaders from diverse groups, we develop leaders with great potential for broader reach to diverse communities within North Carolina and beyond.

19. Examples of leadership programming offered through the Carolina Union are described below.

20. The Atlantic Coast Conference (“ACC”) Student Leadership Symposium is an annual program designed to develop a community of ACC undergraduate students who understand the relationship between global and local issues and who work collaboratively to create innovative initiatives that advance students’ capacity for global leadership. Student-participants from each of the 15 ACC colleges and universities have the opportunity to engage in educational sessions, hear keynote addresses, explore topical content, and participate in experiential application through their group project collaboration and presentations. Prior Symposiums have explored themes including: race/ethnicity, religion, sexual orientation, physical ability, family background, socio/economic status, physical appearance, immigration status, gender, homelessness, gentrification, and education.

21. Carolina United is another leadership program designed to create a safe environment for students to candidly discuss issues of diversity and multiculturalism. This four-day program takes place the week before classes begin and focuses particularly upon the diversity of viewpoints, as determined by students’ unique experiences, personalities, and perspectives. The program is intended to foster collaborative dialogue that unites participants across their differences in a safe, accepting environment. Carolina United, as a program ascribing to this broad definition of diversity and leadership, brings together students from all walks of life and types of campus involvement. Throughout the week, students attend sessions on topics such as Interfaith Dialogue, Dimensions of Power and Privilege, and Conflict Resolution. Students also learn to create and implement programs that will continue the mission of Carolina United once they return to campus. The students who participate in this program also have the opportunity to annually discuss their individual program idea and plan with University administration at the highest levels. King Decl. Ex. 1 is a photograph of Carolina United participants in 2017.

22. The NC Fellows program is a four-year, cohort-based leadership program that has been present at UNC since 1968. It is designed to motivate undergraduate students to maximize their leadership potential. The program seeks to rethink conventional understandings of leadership; to facilitate learning between and among program members; build a supportive community through methods like storytelling and dialogue; and to encourage positive social change by way of those mechanisms. The program strives to build a community of students who are motivated, service-oriented, creative, and ethical. Program highlights include a three-credit sophomore seminar, monthly seminars facilitated by campus and community leaders, and annual retreats. Diversity of thought, experience, perspective, and background contribute to richness of discussion, depth of relationships, and stronger community.

23. The Office of Student Life & Leadership partners with LeaderShape® to offer a six-day intensive institute during spring break. The mission of LeaderShape® is to transform the world by increasing the number of people who lead with integrity and a healthy disregard for the impossible while solidifying one's own passion and vision for the future. A diverse group of students participates in this leadership training. Students participating in the program work on building community and creating their ideal visions for the world.

24. The Union also offers two academic courses on leadership through the School of Education: EDUC 317: Dynamics of Effective Leadership: Leadership Through Self-Awareness, and EDUC 309: An Examination of Quality and the Pursuit of Betterness.

Carolina Union Activities Board

25. The Carolina Union Activities Board (“CUAB”) is the largest student volunteer programming organization at UNC Chapel Hill. CUAB’s mission is to enhance the quality of life for the undergraduate, graduate and professional students at UNC through high-quality social, educational, fun, diverse, inclusive, and engaging programming that enhance intellectual life, offer cultural experiences, and promote social interactions and citizenship. This mission is achieved through intentionally programming to the distinct and varied needs and populations of our campus community. CUAB’s dynamic organizational structure enables them to be able to actively engage students in every stage of the programming process.

26. The programming board has an executive team and multiple committees including a diversity committee, which is responsible for engaging students and community members in diverse conversations, with topics including but not limited to gender, sexuality, race, age, religion, socio-economic status, nationality, disability, and veteran status. They work collaboratively to bring events to the annual Martin Luther King Jr. Day lecture, and Hispanic Heritage Month, as well as secure programs that engage our students in important conversation around identity development, sexual assault, and mental health.

27. For instance, CUAB has hosted internationally regarded scholars and leaders like Angela Davis, Marc Lamont Hill, Junot Diaz, Hasan Minhaj, Michael Sam, and Soledad O'Brien. Through its Art Committee it has featured the thoughtful travelling gallery, "Love Makes a Family," that portrayed queer families and their experiences, and also brought internationally renowned galleries like the, "Windows on Death Row" exhibit, which featured over 90 pieces of art from both famous political cartoonists, and death row inmates in order to create an intentional conversation around the experience of those living on death row. Our nearly 100 CUAB events provide opportunities for over 20,000 students from all backgrounds and experience to come together on campus to build community and lasting connections.

28. For instance, CUAB collaborated with the Carolina Latinx Collaborative in the fall of 2016 to bring Rita Moreno to speak with the Carolina community. Rita engaged the campus in important dialogue about the Latinx experience. Rita also met with a smaller group of students for a more intimate dialogue allowing students to connect to her better.

29. CUAB also collaborated with the LGBTQ Center, UNC Athletics, and Student Life & Leadership to bring Michael Sam to speak to the campus community. Michael engaged in honest and sincere conversation with the students about his experiences coming out as an NFL recruit and also the experiences and challenges facing the LGBTQ community.

30. Another notable collaboration was with the Muslim Student Association & 10 other campus organizations in order to bring Hasan Minhaj to campus in the fall of 2016. Hasan shared with the students in both large groups and small about his experiences being a first generation Muslim American and the challenges he has experienced throughout his life with experiencing racism and discrimination in a post 9/11 America.

31. CUAB collaborated with the Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority Inc. as well as Student Wellness to bring Slam Poet, Neil Hilborn, to campus. Neil presented on his experiences with mental health and how it has inspired him to pursue a life of art and use his mental health challenges to create open and honest dialogues about mental health in people's lives.

Student Government

32. Diversity in student government is very important to ensure that all students have a voice. Diversity within student government leadership also promotes legitimacy for the students who are represented. Moreover, having diverse students participate in student government helps students to understand other viewpoints and issues, negotiate cross-cultural interactions, and develop their capacity for leadership.

33. UNC-Chapel Hill's Student Government represents and advocates for students before administrators, faculty, the Board of Trustees, the Board of Governors, and the state legislature. Carolina's Student Government tackles the policy issues that matter to the University and its students.

34. Student Government consists of the Undergraduate Student Executive Branch, Graduate & Professional Student Federation Executive Branch, Undergraduate Student Senate, Graduate & Professional Student Federation Senate, the Honor System, and the Student Supreme Court.

35. Officers of the Undergraduate Executive Branch lead the campus community and make approximately 150 student appointments to committees across campus that address specific issues and policies affecting the campus. Policy areas include civic engagement, multicultural affairs and diversity outreach. The Undergraduate Executive Branch has issued statements to the campus community about topics such as the Black Lives Matter movement; House Bill 2, which required individuals to use the bathroom that corresponded to their biological sex; Presidential Executive Order barring immigration from seven Islamic-majority countries; and the rallies near Silent Sam, a campus statue of a Confederate soldier.

36. Undergraduate Student Senate and Graduate & Professional Student Federation Senate are the legislative branches of Student Government at UNC-Chapel Hill. Both Student Senates allocate student fees in accordance with funding requests from student organizations, maintain the Student Government Code (the rules by which Student Government operates), and responds to requests for help from students regarding student life at UNC Chapel Hill.

37. The University also has a student-run Honor System and a Student Body Supreme Court.

38. King Decl. Ex. 2 is a photograph of UNC-Chapel Hill's student government leaders in the executive branch for 2017-18. King Decl. Ex. 3 is a photograph of UNC-Chapel Hill's student government leaders in the executive branch for 2016-17. King Decl. Ex. 4 is a photograph of UNC-Chapel Hill's student government leaders in the legislative branch for 2016-17.

Student Organizations

39. The Office of Student Life & Leadership works with student organizations to provide services, programs, and activities that enhance the academic experience, extend learning, and build community.

40. We have approximately 800 student organizations and are constantly adding new ones. Some of these organizations are related to ethnic or cultural identities. King Decl. Ex. 5 is a list of student organizations as of August 30, 2017. Each of these groups has a different purpose or mission, and no two groups are alike. With such a wide range of offerings, our students can find organizations that interest them or that address issues about topics which they may be passionate.

41. How to work cooperatively with other organizations with interests different from our own, is a fundamental, and most important lesson to learn in democracy, and is an opportunity the Union provides. Our student organizations seek each other out to forge partnerships and collaborations that enhance their experience, the experience of their peers, and adds to the diverse array of event and activity offerings available to our campus community.

42. An example of these student-driven collaborations includes Holi Moli 2017. Holi Moli UNC collaborated with UNC Sangam, the Campus Y, Hindu YUVA, and MADO to produce Holi Moli 2017, a large-scale event that promotes multiculturalism and diversity at UNC by celebrating the arrival of spring through the Hindu holiday of Holi and by raising awareness and funds for social justice initiatives in our community. To pursue its mission, Holi Moli UNC unites organizations across campus to plan events that convey the cultural and social justice messages of Holi. The culmination of these events is seen in the Holi Moli event, in which thousands of Tar Heels gather on Hooker Fields to throw their colors in the air in celebration of their identities and that of others.

43. Our student organizations create key spaces for forging bonds and building community across difference. They create an opportunity for students from different backgrounds to find similar passions and interests. When our student body is diverse, we have diversity within our student organizations that help to foster collaborative dialogue. This in turns builds a better appreciation for unity across difference and a validation of one's own identities.

44. In addition to student organizations, the Union provides our students with the resources to plan and facilitate events. An example, would be "Spark," a three-year program for women of color to engage in meaningful dialogue around identity and what it means to be a woman of color on UNC's campus. This program was started last year by two juniors who had a desire to eliminate the feelings of disconnect and despair by student women of color trying to navigate a predominately white campus. The SPARK program begins with a retreat to assist first-year women of color in their transitions and to enhance the overall success of women of color on campus. The founders wanted to create meaningful relationships and a support system for women of color at UNC-Chapel Hill. In September 2016, more than 50 women applied for 25 spots and 30 women ultimately attended the first Spark retreat, for which the institution provided financial support and an advising model. Now in its second year, the Union has worked with the students to create a sustainable model for the program so it will exist well into the future.

Assessment of the Union's Efforts and Future Plans

45. The Union works hard to assess whether its programs are providing meaningful interaction opportunities for students and how the Union can continue to improve its service to the campus community.

46. A full-time, Master's degree level professional serves as the Co-Curricular Learning and Assessment Program Coordinator for the Carolina Union. This coordinator directs and implements ongoing visioning, development and assessment of programs that involve direct interaction and impact on the quality of educational experiences outside the classroom. A key responsibility for this position is directing, implementing, facilitating, and evaluating culturally inclusive programming around an array of student life and leadership topics, including, but not limited to, educational programming for international, veteran, Greek, transfer, first-generation, and first year students.

47. We have also participated three times (2009, 2012, 2015) in the Multi-Institutional Study of Leadership ("MSL") Data to help inform our efforts. The MSL was initially developed as a means to enhance institutional practice by better aligning the theory-research-practice cycle. The MSL examines the role of higher education in developing leadership capacities with a focus on specific environmental conditions that foster leadership development. Researchers have also used data to explore campus climate, sense of belonging, student involvement and diversity education.

48. General findings from the most recent MSL survey affirm the importance of our diversity and inclusion work. These results indicate that socio-cultural conversations, or conversations about a set of beliefs, customs, practices, and behavior that exist within a population, improve leadership efficacy, complex cognitive skills, social perspective, and hope. Our data also showed that participation in a student group related to a racial or ethnic group improved all areas of leadership outcomes compared to those not involved in those groups. It further showed that students who have socio-cultural conversations and feel they belong on campus rate higher in all areas of leadership outcomes. King Decl. Ex. 6 is a summary of MSL survey results from 2015.

49. The Union also participates in The Skyfactor (formerly EBI MAP-Works). The goal of The Skyfactor survey is to help develop a standard for comparison between peer and aspirant institutions and the offerings provided through their Student Unions. This year is the fourth time, since 2008, that the Carolina Union has participated in the biannual survey. These findings also help us assess our comparative effectiveness in meeting student needs.

50. During the 2016-2017 academic year, our student majority Board of Directors, initiated and paid for, a feasibility study to evaluate the existing Frank Porter Graham Student Union. The recommendations from the study were intended to achieve a few goals: (1) inform the Board of Directors of the current and future needs the student body desires from the Carolina Union, (2) help to inform the development of the University Master Plan as it relates to the student experience, and (3) articulate a clear and specific vision of a new Union.

51. At the beginning of the project, the selected design firm worked with key student stakeholders and building managers to establish guiding principles for the project. In the end, six critical principles emerged and remained central to the project. They are (as listed in order of importance by our students): (1) Diversity and Inclusivity, (2) Greater Sense of Campus Community and Student Connectivity, (3) a building of distinction, that is both simultaneously forward-looking and modern with a respect for tradition, (4) adaptable and flexible, (5) sustainable and environmentally conscious, and (6) reflects the spirit and aspirations of UNC Chapel Hill.

52. Shortly after the guiding principles were established a web-based survey was emailed to the 29,048 enrolled students in order to quantify student satisfaction with the current Carolina Union and identify student preference for the future regarding satisfaction levels of various spaces, and consideration for future programming space in a renovated or enhanced union facility.

53. The web-based survey yielded a 19% response rate. Overall, the survey population was demographically representative of UNC Chapel Hill student demographics with an even response distribution between class levels. The data collected from the survey formed a platform from which the design firm developed a set of recommendations for the types and amount of spaces that are needed to meet the demands of current and future users.

54. The survey indicated that our students desire intracultural spaces and want more of them. They want more intentionality and the opportunity to meet and interact with others who different from them. We responded to these results during the Facility Program phase of our year-long feasibility study.

55. The completed Carolina Union Feasibility Study, accepted by the student majority Board of Directors, and presented to the University, recommends that the Union dedicate almost 12,000 gross square feet to spaces related to embracing, celebrating, and exploring diversity and inclusion.

Conclusion

56. The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill's diversity is essential to the student experience. The world is changing and it is imperative that our students are equipped to function successfully in a global society. By providing enriching, intentional diverse experiences in challenging but supportive environments like a college campus, we facilitate the social, emotional, intellectual, moral, and career development of our students for their overall wellness.

57. Through these countless touchpoints of exposure, students recognize, respect and celebrate individual and cultural differences, practice inclusiveness, and demonstrate civility in all discourse. Thereby, enhancing the quality of student life at Carolina and preparing each individual to thrive in our world.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the United States that the foregoing is true and correct.

Exhibit 6 to King Declaration

Overview

Data in this report is collected through the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill's participation in the Multi-Institutional Study of Leadership (MSL). The MSL is "one of the largest studies of college student leadership to date and was further significant for its use of theoretically grounded measures. The impact of MSL extends beyond the arena of leadership education as well. Researchers have used data to explore a wide array of critical topics from campus climate and sense of belonging to student involvement and diversity education."

General Findings (data not included in following pages)

- Socio-cultural conversations improve leadership efficacy, complex cognitive skills, social perspective taking, and hope (both pathways and agency)
- Majority of non-white students rate higher in complex cognitive skills and social perspective-taking than their white peers
- Participation in a student groups related to a racial or ethnic groups improve all areas of SCM leadership outcomes compared to those not involved in those groups
- Student who often have socio-cultural conversations and students who feel a sense of belong on campus rate higher in all areas of Social Change Model Leadership outcomes compared to those who do not

Fig. 1 - Public and Private Racial Esteem

- UNC students have identified that their Collective Racial Esteem is important to their identity. These results score higher than the National Sample, our Carnegie Classification peers, our Control Peers, and our Size Peers - meaning that UNC students prioritize both Public and Private Collective Racial Esteem more than all of our comparison groups.
- However, on an agreement scale (appendix A) Public and Private Collective Racial Esteem has dropped since 2012. We consistently score lower in these categories than the National Sample, our Carnegie Classification peers, our Control Peers, and our Size Peers

Fig. 2 - Social Perspective Taking

- When engaging in controversy with civility, social perspective taking is critical for success. UNC students continuously report gaining a capacity for social perspective taking in college; though we have seen a decrease over the last two years in the exposure to this area prior to attending college.
- The data also shows a significant increase in Social Perspective Taking from prior to college scores to senior year scores - meaning that at UNC, exposure to these experiences (ones that require students to carefully consider their social perspectives, and the social perspectives of others they are engaging with) is impacting student learning and development in this area by senior year (appendix B & C).
- Additionally, we see that UNC scores lower in Social Perspective-Taking than the National Sample, our Carnegie Classification peers, our Control Peers, and our Size Peers

Overview

The Skyfactor (formerly EBI MAP-Works) is distributed to at participating institutions across the country. The goal is to help develop a standard for comparison between peer and aspirant institutions and the offerings provided through their Student Unions. This is the fourth time, since 2008, that the Carolina Union has participated in the biannual survey.

Skyfactor Indicators

The Skyfactor survey uses 11 Factors to assess the quality of different services and offerings found in Student Unions. The assessment employs a series of questions mapped to 11 unique Factors regarding specific areas of College Unions; as well as a score for Factor 12, the overall performance score for the Carolina Union. For each Factor, including Factor 12, the goal is to reach or surpass a performance rating score of 75%.

- The Carolina Union's mission is to "create safe, inclusive, and educational experiences that enable students to maximize their time at Carolina."
- We see that the most popular engagement happens 1-2 times per semester among all students.
- Additionally, the percentage of White Students engaging in activities in the College Union 1-2 times per semester is higher than all other racial groups, with the exception of students who belong to two or more races.
- However, when looking at numbers for retained engagement of 1-3 times per month, White students report only 23.1% of their population engages in activities in the Union 1-3 times per month. Whereas, the next closest (omitting 2 or more races) percentage comes in at 36.6% from Hispanic student engagement.
